Logistics is the engine that runs our economy and connects markets all over the world. The more the world produces, the more transport there is and this has major environmental consequences. As a leading European parcel logistics provider, we are fully aware of our responsibility towards the environment. Protecting our environment is therefore a key principle at GLS. Sustainability is even one of our five core values and every one of our employees throughout Europe puts it daily into practice.

In 2008, GLS launched its ThinkGreen environmental initiative. Environmentally-conscious thoughts and actions pervade all areas of the company, from transportation planning to buildings and individual workplaces. All European GLS companies have local environmental representatives which are responsible for the implementation of group-wide environmental protection measures.
